The Buck(thorn) Stops Here

Learn how to properly identify, remove and dispose of buckthorn at one of the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board's (MPRB) fall buckthorn removal events.

Buckthorn is one of many invasive plants that the MPRB manages throughout the city's park system.

The non-native shrub rapidly invades woodlands displacing native shrubs and wildflowers.

Late in the fall, after native trees and shrubs have dropped their leaves, buckthorn is easily spotted because its leaves are still bright green.

After initial removal of large tree-sized buckthorn, ongoing maintenance in the form of seedling pulling helps to maintain progress against the invasive plant.

In effort to achieve sustainable buckthorn removal efforts, the MPRB focuses on existing native plant communities with an identified need for protection, as well as sites with ongoing neighborhood and volunteer commitment. These areas also have dedicated environmental stewardship volunteers and the MPRB is very appreciative of their hard work and com-

11th Ward Update

by Council Member
John Quincy

Dear Friends and Neighbors – Thank you for this opportunity to provide news on city issues. I am privileged to represent the 11th ward on the Minneapolis City Council. As budget season is in full swing, it's the perfect time to highlight A City That Works, one of our six city goals.

The Mayor's proposal to increase the property tax levy by 6.5% is the lowest proposed increase in the last decade. The City's portion of property taxes funds the city enterprise, the Park Board, the Municipal Building Commission, and the Public Housing Authority. Pension obligations are responsible for all of this year's property tax increase.

Keeping city infrastructure — streets, bridges, sidewalks, sewers, bike lanes and paths — well-managed and maintained is a major push within the 2011 proposed budget. Assuming the state follows through on its commitments in Local Government Aid, Minneapolis will be able to make improvements on 63% of its city streets in the next five years. At our 2010 funding level, we would have only been able to improve 24% of our streets, a drastic difference.

The City shows its commitment to a collaborative, efficient and reform-minded government through the many partnerships it is pursuing, including organics recycling with Hennepin County, MPD officers once again in Minneapolis Public Schools, and a proposed new park dedication fee that will go before the city council this fall. We are also focused on an optimal use of technology and wireless capacity through our partnership with USI Wireless, including free hot spots throughout Minneapolis and an initiative to use wireless service throughout the city enterprise.

Due to our philosophy that a shared democracy empowers residents as valued partners the City's budget processes are completely open to the public. Over the next two months, city departments will report to the Ways and Means Committee, presenting how they will meet the Mayor's proposed budget plan and requesting any additional funding. In December, the committee will roll all of what they've heard together with the Mayor's proposal and present it to the full council. Before the final budget is adopted, City residents are invited to testify.

To learn more about the 2011 proposed budget and the budget process, visit:

www.ci.minneapolis.mn.us/city-budget/2011recc/index.asp.

I am always available to answer your questions at 673-2211, including about the city budget and other issues, and would enjoy meeting with you. If you would like to receive the 11th Ward Monthly E-News, please send me an e-mail at:

John.Quincy@ci.minneapolis.mn.us
I look forward to speaking with you!

Happy  Halloween!

Upcoming Public Meeting for the Southern Bike Connection

On Tuesday, October 12th, Public Works will host a public meeting to present a draft proposal for the Southern Bike Connection. This project includes a bicycle boulevard and on-street bike lanes. The meeting will be held at 6:30 pm at Bethel Lutheran Church, 4120 17th Ave.

The Southern Bike Connection is a bicycle boulevard connecting Midtown Minneapolis with Richfield. The route is likely to follow 17th Avenue, the Minnehaha Parkway Trails, and 12th Avenue. This project is scheduled for construction in Summer 2011.

A bicycle boulevard is a local, residential street that is improved for bicycling, including features such as traffic calming, safer crossings at busy streets, large bicycle pavement markings, and way finding signs. A bicycle boulevard does not use bike lanes, and it does not remove on-street parking. Bicycles ride on the street.

The goal is to increase bicycling along these streets. This project was funded through the Non-Motorized Transportation Pilot Program, a source of federal funding with the aim to increase bicycling and walking and decrease driving.

What is proposed in Northrup?

- 17th Avenue at 45th Street: Traffic circle, reversed stop signs
- 46th Street: Curb extensions, curb cut to Minnehaha Parkway bike and walking trails

What is a traffic circle?

A traffic circle is not a roundabout. Each traffic circle will be designed to fit the intersection without modifying the street width or corners. Landscaping is included to make the circle attractive. Traffic circles reduce auto speeds, reduce traffic accidents, and increase bicycle and pedestrian safety. Emergency vehicles, trucks, and buses will be able to pass without running over the traffic circle. All intersections where circles are to be constructed will be reviewed by the Fire Department.

If you have questions or feedback, please contact: Shaun Murphy, Minneapolis Department of Public Works, 333-2450 or Shaun.Murphy@ci.minneapolis.mn.us

More information, including a draft project layout, is available at: www.ci.minneapolis.mn.us/bicycles/SouthernBikeConnection.asp

Welcome to The Beauty Room

by Sue Filbin

The Beauty Room is an apt name for the salon owned and operated by Mi Shaun Schwab and her husband, Aaron. The completely renovated space at 4300 Chicago Avenue is attractive, inviting, and unpretentious. And the skilled stylists, colorists, estheticians, manicurist, massage therapist, and beauty technicians create a welcoming, friendly, family-like energy as they enhance the beauty of each client.

A Convenient Location

Aaron Schwab discovered the former Delux Spa building while doing an online search to purchase 3,000 square feet of commercial space. After a March 2010 move-in, Mi Shaun acknowledges that, "she's excited every day" when she drives up to the building, and admitted that she and her husband are "smitten with the building, the neighborhood, and their business."

Having rented a 1,200-square-foot space in the Longfellow neighborhood since 2005, the Schwabs, their clients, and their 21 independent contractors and employees love the new location in "the middle of everything," equidistant from downtown, Uptown, Southdale, and St. Paul. Mi Shaun and Aaron are also aware that by improving their property, they may contribute toward making a positive difference in the neighborhood—and in people's lives.

The appealing space was designed by Mi Shaun while Aaron collaborated with contractors to completely gut the three connected buildings. New electricity and plumbing were installed and Aaron laid new flooring while Mi Shaun selected colors, wallpapers, finishings, and chandeliers she found at antique shops. She said the renovation was "truly a labor of love."

Many Services

Mi Shaun was raised in a salon environment in one of the three salons owned by her mother. After graduating from the Aveda Institute, Mi Shaun worked for Horst and Friends, and as one of the top colorists and color educators at Juut Salon for almost eight years. She was also recognized one year as the top colorist in the nation by Allure magazine. More than 75% of The Beauty Room's independent-contractor employees share the excellent training and high-quality level of service from their own experience at Juut.

Among the many hair-related services at The Beauty Room are cuts, styling, color, extensions, permanent waves, and the newest trend in hair—Brazilian Blow-Outs and Keratin Treatments. Both treatments smooth and straighten hair. Clients may also schedule skin care, waxing, massage, and gel nails—a manicure that doesn't chip and lasts for two weeks. In addition to carrying several affordable product lines, jewelry, candles, and gifts are also available at the salon.

The website: www.thebeautyroommpls.com is being renovated and will be completed soon. You may call 724-4111 for an appointment to experience beauty—at The Beauty Room.

If you would like information about your business to appear in Close to Home, please contact Jenny, neighborhood organizer, at the Field Regina Northrop office, 721-5424 or frnng@mtn.org.

Drawing a Better Minneapolis

Every ten years, Minneapolis redraws its political boundaries, such as ward and school board districts, to account for population shifts within the city. Minneapolis is considering changes to the redistricting process to make sure that more community voices are heard and to reduce the partisan influence over the process.

The last round of redistricting in 2001 left many voters feeling disenfranchised because the process was used by political parties to draw the districts to their political advantage, without respecting community lines. Communities, such as the Phillips neighborhood, were divided in ways that reduced their ability to have their voice heard at city hall. These problems sparked an effort to reform the process to make sure that these problems don't happen again.

This fall, there will be a question on the ballot in Minneapolis to remove political parties from the redistricting process. Known as a Charter Amendment, this ballot question will eliminate the Redistricting Commission and give the redistricting responsibility to the Charter Commission. This change will let voters take back the process from party insiders and give it to a group of individuals that are appointed the Hennepin County district judge.

How we draw the lines can say a lot about who we are as a city. To ensure that the redistricting process reflects the shared values of the Minneapolis, there will be a series of meetings happening throughout the city to discuss other ways to improve the redistricting process. These conversations will focus on what criteria the redistricting group should use in drawing the lines and what the process should look like.

We hope you will join in the conversation. To find out more information on these events call 605-7978 or visit www.drawminneapolis.org.
